"We Hail Thee, Carolina"

(Tune—Flow Gently, Sweet Afton)

We hail thee, Carolina, and sing thy high praise;
With loyal devotion, remembr'ring the days,
When proudly we sought thee, thy children to be;
Here's a health, Carolina, forever to thee!

To Our Guests

Welcome to the University of South Carolina on this day of special achievement and special recognition of our graduates! We hope you will find these ceremonies, which are a culmination of the efforts of faculty, staff, and, of course, of our students and their families, both meaningful and impressive!

While awaiting the start of the ceremonies, you may care to look at the historical note on South Carolina's oldest university on the following page. There follows a brief description of the Carolina Mace, symbol of the University's corporate entity and of the combined endeavors of the University community.

The commencement program begins with an academic procession to the platform. You are asked to rise as the procession enters and remain standing until the platform party has taken its place, the national anthem has been sung, and the invocation has been given.

When the president closes the ceremonies, please rise and join in the singing of the Alma Mater. There will be no recessional.

Once again, welcome to the commencement exercises of the University!

THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

"FAITHFUL INDEX TO THE AMBITIONS AND FORTUNES OF THE STATE"

The University of South Carolina can truly claim to be the oldest state-established and fully state supported institution of higher learning in the United States. Chartered by the South Carolina General Assembly in 1801, it opened its doors some four years later and was until the outbreak of the War Between the States famed for the excellence of its faculty and library, the distinction of its alumni and the charm of its walled campus, later affectionately known as the Horse<br

The fall of the Confederacy brought difficulties and hardship to the State, but as South Carolina came back to do its oldest University in recent times its growth in size and distinction has been phenomenal. The main campus is now about 130 acres in size, with more than seventy-five permanent buildings. About 21,000 students crowd the home campus with another eight thousand on the university’s satellite system around the state. Among the very latest additions to Carolina’s building program are the Thomas Cooper Library; the Blatt Physical Education Center; a new College of Business Administration; the handsome Law Center; the Williams-Brice College of Nursing; and the new Biological Sciences Center.

The University, with a faculty of over 1,900, has more than 175 programs leading to the doctoral, master’s, bachelor’s and associate degrees awarded by 15 colleges and schools—alleged health professions, business administration, education, engineering, general studies, health and physical education, humanities and social sciences, journalism, law, librarianship, nursing, pharmacy, public health science, mathematics, and social work. The establishment of a School of Medicine has been authorized, The University’s library collection exceeds 2.2 million books and microtexts.

Carolina has the great advantage of being situated in the state capital of Columbia, the seat of South Carolina, twice named an American City. While the University was some students from almost fifty states and almost a dozen foreign lands, it remains dedicated to the intellectual and moral development of the young people of South Carolina whose citizens it proudly serves.

THE CAROLINA MACE

The University's Mace, designed and fashioned by the world famous English silversmith Leslie Durbin, is the symbol of the University's corporate entity and authority as well as of the endeavors of the entire university community. It was created and dedicated in 1967 and is carried in procession on occasions of outstanding importance, such as degree-granting ceremonies or formal dedications. Placing the Mace on its stand is a signal that the proceedings are about to come to order: its retirement indicates that the exercises are concluded.

When "not on duty", the Mace can be seen up close in the University's Museum*. There visitors can examine the fine craftsmanship of its gilt head on which are mounted the seals of the University, of the State of South Carolina and the Great Seal of the United States. From the middle of these arises a stylistic representation of the State Tree, the Palmetto, the fronds of which are formed by a group of thirteen stars, representing the founding colonies of which South Carolina is one. The long shaft—nearly four feet—is decorated with eight stars, reminding us that South Carolina was the eighth state to enter the Union. Due to its special associations the Mace is priceless but in everyday monetary terms, because of its precious metals and rare craftsmanship, its value has tripled since it was presented to the University a little more than seven years ago.

As the Mace represents the whole University community it is carried in procession by the President of the Student Body, escorted by a member of the Faculty, and representatives of the Faculty Emeriti, the Alumni and of Carolina’s Board of Trustees.

* The University Museum is in the War Memorial Building, corner of Sumter and Pendleton Streets. Visitors are welcome between the hours of 9 and 5. (Currently, summer hours are 8:30-4:30).
UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA
1976 UNIVERSITY DISTINCTIONS

The University salutes its graduating class of 1976 and, relying on the support and loyalty of these new alumni, views the future with hope and confidence.

Carolina also cherishes those whose past devotion to its interests has stood the test of time and whose services have helped create an institution in which today's graduates, their parents and sponsors, and the State of South Carolina can take pride. Accordingly, on the recommendation of the President and with the approval of the Board of Trustees, the following members of the faculty are today awarded Certificates of Appreciation naming them

CITATION FOR THE HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

HENRY SAVAGE, JR.

Henry Savage, Jr., was born in Camden, South Carolina, on August 1, 1903, attended public school there, and took the Bachelor of Science degree and the Bachelor of Law degree at the University of Virginia. Returning to Camden to practice law, he was admitted to the South Carolina bar in 1926, becoming in time the founder and senior partner of one of the city's best respected law firms. Keenly interested in the area's civic and commercial development, he gained expertise in investment and banking and became prominent in the local savings and loan movement. He also offered for public office, highlighting his voluntary career in municipal government by serving as Mayor of Camden for over a decade. During his terms of office he pioneered the city manager form and fostered the economic development of the entire Midlands region. He gave effective leadership to the South Carolina Municipal Association, also becoming its president and a member of the Executive Committee of the American Municipal Association.

In his mid-twentieth-century, Henry Savage began a study of tree farming and made himself an expert in this important agricultural endeavor. As president of the South Carolina Forestry Association, he guided its efforts into several new areas of research and development. Concerned with the problem of health care for the average citizen, he devoted much time and energy to the improvement of such agencies as the Camden Hospital, on whose Board of Trustees he served as Vice President. He was also for many years a trustee of the Medical University of South Carolina. His willingness to embrace a wide range of cultural and educational interests led to his presidency of the South Carolinaana Society and to his material support of this University's research collections and of its College of Librarianship.

It is, however, as an author of several well-accepted and highly respected volumes on Southern life and landscape that Henry Savage will probably be best remembered. In this field his achievements include a modern classic on the Santee River and on wilderness America of the pre-Audubon days. A productive writer for over forty years, he is currently engaged in a large-scale work on the activities of American Naturalists from the early eighteenth century to modern times.

In recognition of his work for the improvement of municipal government in South Carolina and for the development of its Midlands region; of his pioneer endeavors in forestry and conservation; of his determined efforts to improve health care for the average citizen; and of his lasting contribution to the literary heritage of his native state, the University of South Carolina now presents, with the approval of its Board of Trustees, Henry Savage, Jr. for the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.
CITATION FOR THE HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS

MILLIGAN MACEO NANCE, JR.

Milligan Maceo Nance, Jr., was born in Columbia, South Carolina, on March 28, 1925, receiving his early education in the city's public school system. In his late teens he volunteered for wartime service in the United States Navy and served his country for three years. Shortly afterwards he entered the South Carolina State College, graduating with the class of 1949. Additional studies, undertaken at New York University, earned him the Master of Science degree.

Maceo Nance's rise to a position of educational and civic leadership in his native state is an example of the triumph of talent, determination, and character. Beginning his professional association with his alma mater as a bookstore clerk, he filled successfully a series of positions with increasing responsibilities until in 1967 he became the College's Vice President for Business and Finance, and its Acting President. A year later, the Trustees elected him President, an appointment he held with distinction since. In recognition to date of his achievements, he has been awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Morris Brown College and the Doctor of Humane Letters from Francis Marion College, formerly the University of South Carolina's regional campus in Florence, South Carolina.

President Nance's energetic service to education and to the general welfare, his balanced judgment, sense of style, and good humor have made him a much sought-after member of statewide and national boards and commissions. He has been or is a member of the Financing of Higher Education Committee of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, treasurer of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, a member of the Governor's Committee on Housing and on Police and Community Relations. Since 1970 he has also been a member of the Steering Committee on Goals for Higher Education in South Carolina. The Department of the Army awarded him its coveted Outstanding Civilian Service Medal and made him a member of its Advisory Panel on R.O.T.C. affairs. He has been a life member and co-chairman of the Life Membership Committee of the NAACP and a Vice President of the Board of Directors of the South Carolina Athletic Hall of Fame. In all these activities his efforts have been consistent and valuable.

In recognition of his outstanding services to higher education and to the general good of his many contributions to the better life of both in South Carolina and in the United States; and of the inspiration to all provided by the example of his career and character, the University of South Carolina now presents, with the approval of its Board of Trustees, Milligan Maceo Nance, Jr., for the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

CITATION FOR THE HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS

STROM THURMOND

Strom Thurmond was born in Edgefield, South Carolina on December 5, 1902. He was graduated from Clemson College, studied law at night, and was admitted to the South Carolina bar in 1930. He practiced in Edgefield, serving for several years as County and City Attorney. His lifelong work for education began in the local school system as teacher and athletic coach. At age seven, he was county superintendent of education and though his public career was short-lived in a few years later he was a Circuit Judge, a phase of his career interrupted by the coming of World War II, since he immediately volunteered for army service.

Strom Thurmond fought in both the Pacific and European theatres, participating in the Normandy invasion. His gallantry won him five battle stars and eighteen decorations and awards, including the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster and high decorations from the French and Belgian governments. He entered the war as a lieutenant-colonel; later he became a major general in the United States Army. He served as president of the Reserve Officers Association and national president of the Military Government Association. His strong belief in preparedness and in the interests of veterans brought him the Congressional Medal of Honor Society National Patriot's Award and the American Legion Distinguished Public Service Award. To name but two of his honors for patriotic causes.

In peacetime Strom Thurmond resumed his judgeship and continued an early interest in farming. Elected Governor of South Carolina, he served with distinction from 1947-51. In 1948, he offered for President on a states'-right ticket, carrying four states. Six years later he made history by being elected to the United States Senate in a write-in campaign. Subsequently he resigned his seat voluntarily, was renominated in a primary, and reelected without opposition.

Senator Thurmond was unopposed for a second term in 1960. Long active in Democratic Party affairs, in 1964 he joined the Republican Party and as South Carolina's senior senator has been reelected for two terms, in 1966 and 1972. He is the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, senior Republican on the Veterans' Affairs Committee, and serves on the Judiciary and Defense Appropriations Subcommittees.

In 1971 he was coauthor of constitutional amendments to assure women equal rights and to extend the vote to eighteen-year-olds. More civic and professional distinctions have been accorded him including ten honorary degrees.

Strom Thurmond is known in both parties for his forthrightness, dedication to principle, and for his energetic pursuit of his constituents' interests. It can be truly said that this University has received a more diligent and painstaking friend in the Congress.

In recognition of his many services to South Carolina and to his country; of his dedication to the cause of education at all levels; of his zeal in the promotion of national preparedness and patriotic endeavor, the University of South Carolina, with the approval of its Board of Trustees, now presents Strom Thurmond for the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.
CITATION FOR THE HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS

JAMES RODNEY SCHLESINGER

James Rodney Schlesinger was born in New York City on February 15, 1929. He is an alumnus of Harvard University where he graduated, summa cum laude, in 1950. He was also elected to Phi Beta Kappa and was Frederick Sheldon Prize Fellow in 1950-51, travelling extensively in western Europe and parts of Africa and Asia. Returning to Harvard, he earned the master’s and doctor’s degrees in economics before going in 1955 to the University of Virginia to teach, serving for eight years. His extracurricular activities at the University included a consult to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and lecturing at the Naval War College. Publication of these lectures led to his joining the nation’s most famous “think tank,” the Rand Corporation, as a senior staff member in 1963. Within four years, he was director of Rand’s strategic studies, specializing in the problems of nuclear proliferation and the role of systems analyses in political decision-making. From 1965 to 1969 he was also engaged as consultant to the Bureau of the Budget.

In February, 1969, James Schlesinger was appointed Assistant Director of the Bureau of the Budget and helped guide the agency in its transition to the Office of Management and Budget. He was responsible for formulating the administration energy policy, with particular attention to the problems of air and water pollution. During these years, while still with the Office of Management and Budget, he began a critical survey of the nation’s intelligence-gathering apparatus.

In July 1971, at age forty-two, Mr. Schlesinger became chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Shortly after taking this post, he announced a major reorganization of the agency’s activities, with an increased emphasis on civilian programs and the needs of the environment and of public safety. In February, 1973, he was called on to head the Central Intelligence Agency, becoming also chairman of the Intelligence Resources Advisory Committee. As on previous occasions, he was instrumental in reducing surplus manpower within the agency and making fundamental changes in policy.

In July 1973, Mr. Schlesinger moved to the Department of Defense as Secretary. He was a persuasive defender of Department policies and argued against extensive cuts in defense; at the same time he spoke out in favor of civilian control and applied the same rationalistic approach to staffing and funding which he had previously shown in government. His term as Secretary ended in November of last year, when he resumed scholarly work at the School of Advanced International Studies of The John Hopkins University.

For his excellence as scholar and teacher, for his imaginative and effective management of highly sensitive areas of the Federal Government; and for his dedication to the preservation of the moral and physical strengths of the United States, the University of South Carolina now presents, with the Robert B. Duncan Fund, summa cum laude, the degree of Doctor of Laws, to JAMES RODNEY SCHLESINGER.
This is a list of candidates for graduation, prepared before final grades were reported, and inclusion therein does not constitute evidence of graduation. Receipt of the diploma by the student does provide such evidence.
